A: A sua função pode ser resumida com a seguinte instrução: `.env("enviar-envelope(pdf), ajax({ url: '...', complete:function(xhr, ajaxOptions, errorThrown){ $('div#resultado').html(xhr.responseText); } })))` This invention relates to a method and apparatus for printing data on a sheet of media. Pressure-sensitive print plates are generally known in the art and are available commercially in various constructions and configurations, depending on the type of ink applied to the print surface. Also, different printing systems are known in the art for applying the ink or other printing material to the print surface, depending on the type of print surface being employed. For example, when employing print surfaces having one or more ink-receptive coatings, such as pressure-sensitive coatings, the print surface is manually pressed against a sheet of media, usually paper. The sheet of media is then rolled through a nip or other portion of the printing machine where ink is applied to the print surface of the media. In view of the rapid development of color printing systems, there is a need to provide a printing system that can produce high quality printed output. The need for a commercial printing system that can produce high quality output includes a system for printing a sheet of media that contains more than one color, i.e. a system that is able to accurately and reliably print a sheet of media having a plurality of colors on the sheet. The need for a commercial printing system that can produce high quality output includes a system that can reliably print a sheet of media that contains text and images or graphics. The need for a commercial printing system that can produce high
